Brooding over his plans for a new world of power, Dr. Diesel was last seen on the steamer's deck. When she docked in the morning, he was gone, and 25 years have only clouded the mystery.

By NEA Service

A world that rides streamlined trains and record-breaking ocean liners knows little or nothing of the mystery of the man whose invention made possible these modern miracles of power and speed.

Defense Rests in Trial of 2 Others for Spa Murder

Anderson Repeats Original Story Against Dickson and Johnson

DENIAL IS ENTERED
Dickson Denies He Participated Either in Plot or Murder

HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—(AP)—The defense rested Wednesday in the trial of Alfred (Pug) Dickson, 35, Hot Springs butcher, and Clarence (Bill) Johnson, 23, charged with murdering Eldon Cooley, grocery chain official, after Dickson took the stand to deny any participation in the crime or the alleged robbery plot leading to it.

Two on Trial
HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—Alfred (Pug) Dickson, 35 and his nephew, Clarence (Bill) Johnson, 23, were on trial in Circuit Court here Tuesday night on a charge of first degree murder of Eldon Cooley, executive of the Stewart chain of groceries here.

Curtis Ridgeway, deputy prosecuting attorney, demanded the death penalty for both.

In the same room early Tuesday morning a different jury convicted Joe Anderson and his wife, Lucille, of first degree murder in connection with the same case. The verdict was unqualified which meant death sentence for both.

Anderson Repeats Story
Anderson's story from the witness stand was almost identical with the one that he gave while testifying in his own defense Monday.

He said that he, Dickson and Johnson planned to rob one of the Stewart chain stores from which Cooley collected the day's receipts late each afternoon. He said that Johnson pointed out Cooley, that he, Johnson and Dickson made Cooley a captive in his own automobile and took him out to the lonely Mill Creek road and robbed him. However, he insisted that Dickson shot and killed Cooley and said that he had no intention that the captive was to be slain. He said that he was returning to Cooley's car and was 30 feet away when Dickson fired the fatal shot.

Anderson repeated his vigorous denial that his wife was in the party that abducted Cooley.

Holding the small-barreled revolver with which Cooley was slain, Tucker asked if it were the gun that Anderson loaned to Dickson and with which

CRANIUM CRACKER

An actress who died recently and who had achieved her greatest fame during the movies' silent days was known as "the girl with the topaz eyes." She entered the films the year the Lusitania was sunk. Who was the actress referred to, what was the color of her topaz, and what year did the actress enter the films?

Answer on Classified Page

Twenty-five years ago there vanished from the face of the earth the man who had a great hand in the change that still agitates the mechanical world. And today, the disappearance of Rudolph Diesel is as great a mystery as it was on the morning when the world learned he was gone.

Stars shone from a clear sky as the channel steamer Dresden put out from Antwerp for London on the night of September 29, 1913. A distinguished-looking man of 55 strolled the deck, a package of plans and documents under his arm. He was Rudolph Diesel, cosmopolitan Paris-born German, whose engine was already widely in use in Germany and other countries.

Diesel's invention had netted him a fortune, his original model was honored by a place in a German museum. German submarines, a big factor in the World War that was to break within a year, were made possible by them. Diesel was on his way to a meeting of British manufacturers.

He was seen on deck, glancing in the bright moonlight at the plans and documents he carried. Then he retired to his cabin.

The next morning when the Dresden docked, representatives of the British companies looked in vain for Dr. Diesel among the passengers. No one had seen him since the night before.

Auxiliary hands forced open his cabin door. The room was empty. The bed had not been slept in. The important documents were gone.

Suicide? Murder?
What happened to Dr. Diesel? To this day no one knows for certain.

Suicide? Unlikely. For though he had been somewhat disappointed in the eminence that had come to him as a result of his invention, he was in excellent health, had no family or money troubles, and had never suggested a desire to die.

Accident? He was seen retiring to his cabin. The watch had heard no splash, no cry.

Murder? Rumors flew widely about that Germans had murdered him lest he reveal to the English the secrets he knew about German submarines, the plans that would enable the British to build them too.

A body was found, partially but not definitely identified as his. No one knows to this day what was the fate of the man who revolutionized the power world.

J. B. Mathews, 72, Dies From Shotgun Wound in Stomach

Mathews was a long-time resident of Lewisville, and had served for many years as assistant roadmaster of the Cotton Belt railroad. For a time, he was in charge of an extra gang on the Louisiana and Arkansas railroad. He was one of the oldest members of the Lewisville Lodge No. 14, F. and A. M. ## Two Performances By Russell Bros. Circus Wednesday

Big Show Is Located on Old 67 Highway Near Cook's Gin

2ND SHOW AT 8 P. M.

Program, With Many Thrills, Is Scheduled for Two Hours

Circus day, in some respects the Autumn counterpart of Christmas, is here at last, and children from 2 to 102 have been digging coins out of savings banks all day.

Hope is host to Russell Bros. 3-ring circus, which gave its first performance at the Betts Show Grounds Wednesday afternoon. The second and last start at 8 Wednesday night, doors opening at 7 to permit time for leisurely inspection of the large menagerie.

Wednesday afternoon's large audience greeted with enthusiasm the two hour program, finding it packed with thrills and first-class entertainment.

Habitual circus-goers laughed again at Joe Hodgini, the amazing man who develops within a few minutes from a clumsy tramp to a skilled bareback rider. Madame Bechini's famous horses and ponies exhibited remarkable beauty and intelligence.

Irene Ledgett's military elephants, offering an encouraging note to plump women, showed that weight is no obstacle to speedy and graceful performance.

The program is punctuated by the pranks of Rube Eagan's merry troupe of clowns. The musical score is provided by Professor Brooks and his band.

Russell Bros. came to Hope from Stamps and will proceed to Nashville for two shows on Thursday.

The show is located on old Highway 67 near Cook's cotton gin at the north-eastern edge of town.

District Electric Project Approved

Plans for Expenditure of $315,000 Announced by Frank J. Hill

Frank J. Hill of Hope, member of the board of directors of a six-county rural electrification project, announced here Wednesday that REA Administrator Faulkenwald of Washington had approved plans for an expenditure of $315,000 on construction of rural electric lines in Hempstead, Nevada, LaFayette, Howard, Sevier and Polk counties.

The plans for this expenditure were approved at Little Rock Tuesday afternoon by Mr. Faulkenwald who met with the directors of this district, the Arkansas Utility Commission and officials of the Arkansas Power and Light company.

Mr. Hill said the plans now would be forwarded to Washington for the appropriation which is expected within the next 15 days.

The plans call for construction of 186 miles of rural lines in western Hempstead county, Sevier and Polk counties with an average of two customers per mile; one hundred miles of rural lines in southeastern Hempstead county, Nevada, LaFayette and Columbia counties; and a 25-mile extension of the present lines in Miller county.

Accompanying Mr. Hill to the Little Rock meeting Tuesday were W. T. Murphy of Texarkana and T. J. Garey of Nashville, who are also directors of the rural electrification project in this district.

Hope Girl Wins Praise on Stage

Former Mary Hortense McCorkle Gets Nod From Walter Winchell

Walter Winchell, world-famous Broadway commentator, found high praise for a Hope girl appearing on the New York stage last week—although the play itself is apparently doomed to failure.

The girl is the former Mary Hortense McCorkle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed McCorkle, whose stage name is Mary Drayton. Miss McCorkle took the name Drayton from her mother's family tree.

Mr. Winchell wrote the following review in the New York Daily Mirror September 28:

"An inconsequential melodrama called 'Thanks for Tomorrow' by LeRoy Bailey was presented at the Baves theater last night. Walter Brooks is the producer and he also staged it. It probably will depart Saturday midnight.

"There is a considerable amount of nothing in its first two acts and four scenes, excepting the sincere performance of a girl named Mary Drayton. Here is the only playing you can recognize as legitimate, pretending the entire troupe."

The others offer counterfeit histrionics, ranging from over-playing down to rank amateurishness.

"Mr. Bailey's manuscript is second-rate stuff—and with no talent on the stage to help Miss Drayton and himself, 'Thanks for Tomorrow' hasn't a chance of surviving in the crowded field of competition. One doubts if the newcomer would have much of a chance in the Broadway arena, anyhow. It deals with a scoundrel in the high club and gambling racket, who aims to 'get what is coming to him' and his respectable sister, blinded in a car accident.

"Before the second act asbestos falls he has ruined her life all over again by shooting a political boss. You feel very sorry for her and for 'Thanks for Tomorrow.' And the case whose names are omitted."

The law becomes effective October 24.

Andrews said that although his administrative duties would necessitate interpretations of his law, such interpretations would be subject to court review.

EL DORADO, Ark.—The El Dorado City Council has adopted a resolution denouncing as "unfair" the present gasoline tax turnback system. ## Swimming Pool Is Given Approval by Hope City Council

Authorize Expenditure of $7,500 as Sponsors' Share

$21,000 FOR WPA

Pool and Amphitheater Would Be Constructed at Fair Park

The city council Tuesday night adopted a motion by Alderman E. P. Young calling for an expenditure of $7,500 as the city's cost for construction of the proposed $28,500 swimming pool and amphitheater at Fair Park.

Alderman Roy Johnson cast the only dissenting vote on the roll call.

The Works Progress Administration has already approved plans of the project and would furnish $21,000.

An ordinance, however, must be passed by the council as the first step toward authorizing the $7,500 expenditure. The Board of Public Affairs some time ago recommended the city's share of the construction cost.

The swimming pool, when constructed, would be operated by the city with an admission charge that would repay the construction cost, officials said.

Tuesday night's test vote on the swimming pool was considered final, with the ordinance to be drawn up as a mere formality. The pool will be patterned after the one at Monticello, considered the finest in South Arkansas.

Gas Company Taxed
The council passed an ordinance Tuesday night fixing an annual tax on the Arkansas Louisiana Gas company of $600 for the use of the city's streets, alleys, avenues and other public grounds in furnishing gas to the inhabitants of the city.

The ordinance also provided 500,000 cubic feet of gas per year free to the city jail, city fire station and city hall building.

Street Improvement Plan
Alderman C. E. Taylor proposed the grading of every dirt street in Hope.

His plans called for the city to furnish three trucks and pay for the gravel at the pit at 5 cents per yard—with the WPA to furnish gasoline, drivers and labor in putting the gravel down.

Wayne Fletcher, WPA supervisor, told the council he would draw up the project and submit it to officials for approval.

Filing of routines reports concluded the meeting.

Wage-Hour Bill Decisions Held Up

Administrator Andrews Swamped With Requests for Rulings

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Elmer F. Andrews, wage-hour administrator, appealed to industry Tuesday to be patient if requests for interpretations of the wage-hour law are not answered promptly.

"With a congressional appropriation insufficient for minimum administrative needs," he said in a statement, "with a staff far from complete, and with many pressing problems of organization yet to be worked out, the wage and hour division finds it physically impossible at this time to answer the hundreds of letters requesting interpretations of the law."

"More immediate pressing is the duty of the administrator to promulgate rules and regulations of various sorts, to devise procedures for numerous fact determinations, definitions and classifications—all of which matters will be worked out and published at the earliest moments consistent with care and deliberation in draftsman's shop."

The law becomes effective October 24.

Andrews said that although his administrative duties would necessitate interpretations of his law, such interpretations would be subject to court review.

Nashville Dairy Show Is Success

Approximately 4,000 Persons Attracted; Have Many Entries

NASHVILLE, Ark.—More than 4,000 persons attended the Howard county dairy show held here Tuesday on sawdust-covered Main street beneath a great expanse of canvas, with 71 entries from six of the 13 counties comprising the Southwest Arkansas district of the American Jersey Cattle Club.

D. F. Simons of the A. J. C. C. judged the entries. Sixty-seven of the cows were Jerseys, the other four being Holsteins. The cows were exhibited on each side of a hitching rail on Main street, and the canvas was stretched above to protect them from the hot sun.

Nashville business gave way to the dairy show, which will be followed by a stock show Wednesday.

Loudspeakers carried the talk by Mr. Simons. Visiting county agents were introduced by Paul N. Edleman, Howard county agent, and vocational agriculture teacher were presented by L. S. Stinson, agricultural agent, and Ashleigh Bales, animal husbandman for the Missouri Pacific, and Glenn Wallace, president of the Nashville Chamber of Commerce.

The Peach Blossom girls trio sang and the Peach Orchard boys band played.

The dairy products division of the show was held in the Reeder Hill building, with C. O. Twenty-three products were entered from five counties, with Howard leading with 12 entries.

President Benes Resigns to Allow Nazi Peace Pact

Munich Agreement Had Destroyed His Entire Foreign Policy

A FAVORABLE VIEW

Observers Believe Benes' Departure Will Give Czechs Peace

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia.—(AP)—The resignation of Eduard Benes, of Czechoslovakia, was officially announced Wednesday.

The resignation of the chief of the state, who held the little republic together as long as possible under the pressure of tremendous events, was not unexpected, although it had been denied several times recently.

Benes became president of Czechoslovakia in December, 1935, succeeding the founder of the republic, the late Thomas G. Masaryk.

It was understood General Jan Syrovky, soldier-premier, would be acting president until an election could be held.

The Munich agreement of the four big powers, compelling Czechoslovakia to cede the Sudetenland to Germany, represented the complete failure of the foreign policy which Benes had been closely associated since the founding of the state 20 years ago.

Informed persons felt that Benes' departure from office—possibly from the county—might remove the current acute situation and make collaboration with Germany possible.

Seek Czechs' Release
LONDON, Eng.—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons Wednesday that Great Britain is seeking the release of "certain Czechoslovak officials in frontier districts," and Czech residents in Germany who had been imprisoned in Germany as "hostage."

Opening the third day of Commons debate on the four-power accord of Munich for the cession of Czechoslovakia's Sudetenland to the Reich, Chamberlain said the government had received reports that such officials and residents had been held during the occupation of the ceded territory.

He said the government was unable to estimate the number involved, but had instructed the British representative on the international commission supervising the occupation to "press for the release of any such hostages as soon as possible."

"The fact is that France on her own initiative and without consulting the Union of Socialist Soviet Republic has already annulled the Czechoslovak-Soviet pact as a corollary of the Franco-Soviet pact."

"What now is the value of the latter pact since France has just torn up her treaty with Czechoslovakia—a treaty which bound her much more strongly?"

"It has done this at the very moment when the latter country (Czechoslovakia) was under the threat of Fascist aggression. Loss of her allies

CHAPTER III

REACHING the entrance of the Golden Bowl, Bob Tait found the big doors closed tight. A persistent knocking conjured up the red face of Detective Officer Michael Dunphy.

"Hello, Mike," Tait greeted him.

"How's chances to get in?"

"In is it? You're the first one that's been wanting to get in. The rest have been wanting to get out." Reluctantly, Dunphy shifted his huge bulk to admit Tait.

The great Bowl was empty now save a comparatively small knot of people down near the orchestra platform. Tait recognized the back of Detective Officer Dannie Feeley, the most persistent of the force from down at headquarters.

"Where're all the rest of the mob, Mike?"

"Don't worry," said Michael Dunphy. "Dannie has watched that. They're upstairs, the women in one room and the men in another, and they're being frisked for suspicious belongings. The worst of it is, about 50 or 75 got out of here right after it happened." The detective sighed wearily.

"We don't know where they went—and I don't know, furthermore, who they are. A fine kettle of fish."

"Well," Tait answered good-humoredly, "there's nothing like getting in a lot of probable suspects if you're going to commit a murder."

"Yeah, I saw a movie once where a murder was committed at a football game."

"That was worse than this, anyhow."

"WAS it now?" denied Mike Dunphy. "Say, that was pie compared with this! At least guys at football games talk sense. I can't understand a word those band players say. That little guy there with the clarinet." The detective raised his voice to mimic the clarinet player. "I never saw the tomcat feelin' better," this little guy tells Dannie. 'He was in the groove tonight. He was sending it out of the agony pipe like nobody's business.' That's the way they talk!"

Tait laughed. "That's the language of swing music, Mike. Know what they call the dancers?"

"No, I do not."

"Jitterbugs—and whackies. Sometimes they call them ickies."

Michael Dunphy's blue eyes widened. "Well, I hope the saints preserve us! Where they talk like that, anything could happen! Jitterbugs is right!"

"Don't let it get you down," Tait advised. "Remember you lived through the jazz age."

"Not only that. I lived through it 'way back to when they were Turkey Trotting. But I wasn't no jitterbug." Dunphy looked over at his cohort, questioning the

In such a crisis, the music simply has to be faced. And it is not at all fair to put it all on one.

Once in awhile things are reversed and the wife reneges when it comes to a showdown. Then her husband has to take matters in hand and make the decision. But such cases are rare as compared with the others. It comes, probably, of men habitually referring all care of the family to mother.

Which is natural, I suppose, and not to be censured. Yet it seems to be a scant excuse when life is at stake, or some vital event in a child's experience. At such times both parents are equally concerned and neither should be called upon to shoulder the entire burden of choice.

It is always a comfort to a woman to know she can go to her husband and talk over serious affairs with him, being assured that he is interested and willing to advise without prejudice. To know that he won't close his mind or lose his temper the minute she mentions an irritating subject, or what he chooses to regard as irritating. The only way to get anywhere is to cooperate; to talk about health, or habits or hopes and map out a new approach.

Moral responsibility, I must reaffirm, is the hardest part of parenthood. It should be shared equally.

RAISING A FAMILY

By Olive Roberts Barton

Unpleasant Burdens of Family Life Must Rest Equally Upon Shoulders of Father and Mother

Once I knew a man who refused to consent to a throat operation on his boy.

He didn't precisely veto the surgery, but he wouldn't say "Yes," mentioning that if his wife wanted it done, she could go ahead.

She didn't know what to do. If things went wrong, it would be her responsibility. Yet she had been told that Brother was getting all his car infections from a diseased throat. There were more complications and the boy was in a bad way.

Time went on. Nothing was done. Every time she brought up the subject the answer was the same. "Well, why don't you go ahead? But you know I don't approve."

It was an acute symptom that caused the crisis, and then she took matters into her own hands and had the work done. But not before she had a terrible week imagining all sorts of dire things. And when Brother got better and stronger this man said: "Why didn't you have it attended to long ago?"

This was his attitude whenever anything happened that required moral responsibility. He knew that he couldn't live with his own conscience if he said "Go ahead," and then was told that the worst had happened. He wanted someone else to supply the conscience. Preferably his wife.

Which is natural, I suppose, and not to be censured. Yet it seems to be a scant excuse when life is at stake, or some vital event in a child's experience. At such times both parents are equally concerned and neither should be called upon to shoulder the entire burden of choice.

It is always a comfort to a woman to know she can go to her husband and talk over serious affairs with him, being assured that he is interested and willing to advise without prejudice. To know that he won't close his mind or lose his temper the minute she mentions an irritating subject, or what he chooses to regard as irritating. The only way to get anywhere is to cooperate; to talk about health, or habits or hopes and map out a new approach.

Moral responsibility, I must reaffirm, is the hardest part of parenthood. It should be shared equally.

In New York

By George Ross

NEW YORK—These wearying eyes detected a trend. It looks to us as though Park Avenue is going Broadway. And vice versa—that Broadway is going Park Avenue.

We sat in a Park Avenue oasis the other night where a songstress politely sings an orchestra sedately plays and a headwaiter helplessly yawns while the customers bear their ennui as best they can.

The proprietor came over. "I know this Park Avenue," he said, "but I can't help it. It's all too goshawful dull. Next month I'm hiring Louis Prima and his hot trumpet and we're going to keep the neighbors around here with swing!"

Now if that were the only instance of how things are going in the Avenue of the Upright Noses, then it would not be a trend. But the other day we heard that when the patrician Waldorf-Astoria Hotel starts up for the Fall, one of its main dining rooms will be host to the swing king, Benny Goodman! And let the dowagers, matrons and corporate heads protest all they can, they will have to become jitterbugs or step out of the social whirl.

Then there's the case of the staid old Delmonico, where haute cuisine used to be the regular thing. What happens now? Well, Harry Richman has just taken over that stolid institution and you can't call him a model of strictest propriety. As we started out to say, Broadway, conversely, is going Park Avenue, because from what we cordially hear around the Rialto, the cafe men are shuntin' gawing along the main stem and if they had their sole way, they also would outlaw the necked girlie shows which they must purvey the year around. It's a topsy-turvy state of affairs we know, but don't let it worry you who live beyond the ken of Gotham. It doesn't worry us.

Pachyderm Pathos

Here are a couple of little stories on big subjects—elephants.

Along with the many wonders of the world that now are working for the WPA circus in New York is a "sacred" black elephant from India named Japino. Japino's owner and master had come upon bad times since 1929, for the four years knocked the tent shows in this land into a cocked hat.

So Japino was forced upon the relief rolls, and with a loss of pride, trouped under the WPA's Big Tent. A little while ago, some WPA bureaucrats decided to dispense with the services of Japino who by this time had won the affections of many children around the town. Word went forth that the axe was about to fall upon the beloved pachyderm. And hundreds of school children wrote penny postcards to President Roosevelt at the White House, pleading for executive clemency.

The Little White Faddier in Washington saw their point. He reprieved Japino and at the satisfying wage of three bales of hay per day.

Making a Monkey of Grief

The other elephantine episode must be prefaced by a tragedy that occurred in the Prospect Park Zoo in Brooklyn a couple of weeks ago.

You may have read in news dispatches that two elephants named Bill and Hilda were butting each other around by the brink of a concrete pit there one day and that Hilda fell in. Her legs broke in the fall and her spine snapped—and they put two powerful cartridges through her head to the heartbreaking bereavement of Bill.

Then they feared for Bill's state of mind, realizing that an elephant doesn't easily forget. Along came a noted Belgian explorer, Armand Denis, on a visit to New York. In his possession, he said, is a lime and congenial balloon. He calls her "Tillie Pinkas." He thinks she would be great company for the elephant Bill.

So that is what the zoo authorities are weighing in their minds now. Should Tillie be given the chance to promote a beautiful friendship? Or should Bill, the elephant, be allowed to brood alone?

I like a dog at my feet when I read. Whatever his size or whatever his breed. A dog now or then that will muzzle my hand. As though I were the greatest of women in the land. And trying to tell me it's pleasant to be. On such intimate terms with one like me. A dog leads a curious life at the best. By the wag of his tail is his pleasure expressed. He pays a high tribute to man when he stays True to his friend to the end of his days. And a wonder sometimes if it happens to be. That dogs pay no attention to the faults which men see. Should I prove a failure; should I stoop to wrong; Be weak at a time when I should have been strong. Should I lose my money, the gossip would sneer. And fill with my blundering many an ear. But still, as I opened my door, I should see My dog wag his tail with a welcome for me—Selected.

"International Crime," newest type of mystery entertainment to come to the screen, has been announced to top the new bill which will open on Thursday at the New theater. This newest holding activities which follow the attempt of a single man to solve the details of a perfect crime, and do this fast enough to prevent disaster striking the citizens of a foreign country.

Treated in the modern manner, it has Rod LaRocque cast as the frankly puzzled young crime commentator who accepts the challenge of a group of international plotters, and undertakes the superhuman job of doing this quickly enough to forestall the far-reaching consequences which would follow success in their ventures. It will be seen here for a run of two days.

Rod LaRocque plays the leading role with a fine sense of balance—combining the devil-may-care of the soldier of fortune sort of operative and the sure, clear logic of the older, slower moving Sherlock Holmes type, Astrid Allwyn, who has the chief feminine

A President Gives Thanks for Peace

Like millions of other worshippers throughout the nation, President Roosevelt gave thanks for peace at St. James' Episcopal church in Hyde Park, N. Y., the Sunday after Europe's war scare had passed. The President, shown here as he arrived in an open car at the century-old church, heard the Rev. Frank B. Wilson call for a continued "anti-war offensive."

role, is seen as his beautiful—and not always brilliant—assistant, a modern young woman with a lot of determination which sometimes leads her into actions which supply plenty of headaches for his employer—to work himself clear of the predicaments which his activities have involved them in. It is based on a story from the popular magazine series by Maxwell Grant. "International Crime" deals with a case in the career of Cranston in which he pits his shrewdness and nerve against conspirators whose attempt to block a proposed financial deal places in jeopardy the fate of an entire nation. He is assisted, at times, by his good friend, the commissioner of police; and at other moments finds himself working almost at complete variance with the organized authorities. Not the least interesting phase of the story comes from the manner in which both sides of the controversy use the radio broadcasts of the detective to involve their opponents.

A strong supporting cast figures in the interest holding, topped by Thomas E. Jackson as the commissioner and William von Brinken, William Pawley and Walter Bonn as the principal conspirators and—in lesser roles, Lou Hearn, Tenen Holtz, John St. Polis, Lloyd Whitlock and Jack Baxley. Jackson is one of the most famous portrayals of policemen's roles in Hollywood. He was brought there after playing the detective during the 22 months "Broadway run" of "Broadway," to present the same role; and has continued to be cast as a detective in nearly every subsequent appearance.

Charles Lamont directed this engrossing new type of mystery story, with Jack Nottelford and John Kraft supplying the screen adaptation of Maxwell Grant's story. Dr. Edward Killen was selected to handle the special musical arrangements, and the producers were Max and Arthur Alexander.

Strip Tense to Win

BLOOMINGTON, Ind.—Every time Bo McMillin passes old Jordan Field on the Indiana campus, someone reminds the coach of one of his more startling triumphs. McMillin was playing with Centre College when it happened, with Indiana as the opposition. The field was a quagmire. The teams were scoreless at the half, and Bo, who hated mud, came out for the second period wearing a clean pair of shoes and a pair of track pants—no pads, jersey, or anything. Thus garbed he ran for two touchdowns to beat Indiana. 12-0.

Razorbacks Drill for Baylor Game

Porkers Strengthened for Battle at Fayetteville Saturday

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark.—Determined to strengthen the Razorbacks' attack, Coach Fred C. Thompson sent his University of Arkansas squad through a long offensive drill Tuesday.

It was announced that Dudley Mays, tackle, and Glynd Lyon, back, who were out of last Saturday's game with injuries, would be able to play against Baylor in Saturday's stadium dedication game. However, Paul Singer, 250-pound sophomore tackle from Brooklyn, is on the sidelines for this week.

Condition of Ralph Atwood, 165-pound speedster who has not played in a game this season, was described as doubtful by Thompson. The coach intimated that he might hold Atwood out for the Texas University game at Little Rock next week.

Razorbacks Strengthened
Lyon, who probably will start against Baylor, will give Arkansas offense. F. C. Thompson and Neil Martin, who played in the game at quarterback, in the absence of Lyon and Atwood, may be judged to allow Kay Eakin some rest. Eakin played practically the entire game against T. C. U. Saturday.

Mays also will start against Baylor and he and Randall Stallings, the other first-string tackle, will be aided by Newman Miller, Jan Carter, and Bob Stout. Carter, a 220-pound sophomore, and Stout did well in relief roles Saturday.

Drills this week will deal with the fundamental job of opening holes in the Baylor line, a department in which the Razorbacks were helpless against T. C. U.

The Library

A non-fiction book of great interest is "American Wings" by Captain Burr Lyson. An informal story of flying in the United States—A clear, straightforward account of the history, experience and achievements of aviation. Captain Lyson knows his field and his book is lively reading and full up to the minute information in all phases of the subject from parachute diving to aerial photography.

In the latter chapters Captain Lyson discusses flying as a career for boys, sport flying, sky writing, the advance in Navy air-craft safety technique, trans-Pacific and trans-Atlantic flights, test piloting, dirigible disasters, and much more. The photographs of planes in the air and views from flying planes are unusually good ones, chosen from the official files of the United States Army, Navy, and other official sources.

A synopsis of one of the most interesting fiction books in the library follows: "Enchanted Oasis" by Faith Baldwin.

Miss Baldwin selects Palm Springs as the setting for her new romance. She creates a set of interesting characters, and paints in highly but shrewdly the background of gay ostentation of that colorful resort stressed by the surrounding desert.

Cynthia Stoddard had been raised carefully and affectionately in England since her mother's death, so Faith Baldwin with its glittering night life seemed like an enchanted new world, which even the presence of her step-mother-guardian could not dim.

Romance appears along with Slim Ramsey, the Texas cowboy who loved her, and she finds herself involved in danger and adventure.

A witty and rapidly-paced novel of love to old-fashioned rules in a new fashioned setting.

RAZORBACK PUNTERS

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark.—The Arkansas Razorbacks are blessed with good punters this season. In addition to Kay Eakin, Glynd Lyon and Ralph Atwood, all of whom had kicking experience last year, Arkansas has uncovered an excellent sophomore kicker in Junior Mitchell of Rogers. A fifth punter who has shown unusual ability is Neil Martin, who drove a 68-yard punt out-of-bounds on Texas Christian's 3-yard line in last week's game. As far as punting is concerned, the Razorbacks can hold their own with any team in the Southwest Conference.

How to See Football

No 3—The Double Wing
By JERRY BRONDSFELD
NEA Service Sports Writer

Gleni Seabey Warner isn't called the Old Fox for nothing. Warner's right in the title is based on his inventive mind, which gave the game many of its trickier maneuvers—most notable of which is the double wing offense. Because the double wing is best suited for only a certain type of material, it is not used as much as the single wing. The system calls for extremely fast linemen who are able to pull out and block, and a fullback who can crack a line wide open from close up.

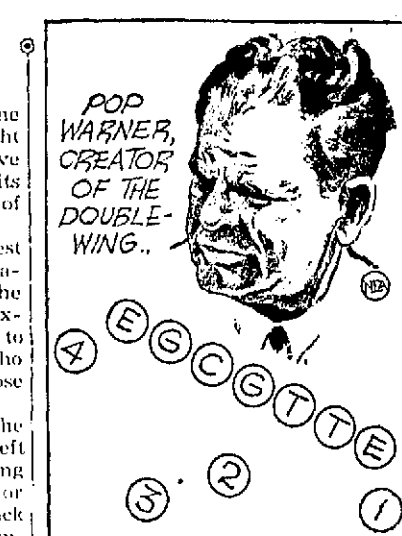

Here, too, the spectator will find the unbalanced formation, with the left tackle going into the right, or strong side of the line. The number 1 back, or right wing, is stationed a yard back of and just outside his end. The number 4, or left wing, is in the same approximate position on the other side.

The bucking, or number 2 back, takes a position about two yards in back of and slightly to the right of his right guard, and the tail back, or number 3, is about five yards directly behind center.

One disadvantage to note instantly is that only two men—the tail and the bucking backs—are in position to take a direct pass from center.

The fan will notice that the bucking back storms through on a lot of summer plays, and that both he and the tail back do a lot of straight hitting inside the tackles.

This opens the way for a lot of reverses both single and double—as might well be imagined, on the part of the wing backs, who often raise hob with the defense by skirting wide around their opposite ends.

The double wing is a strong passing formation, with either of the wings—provided they are good passers—being in position to drop back and take the tail or neither the bucking or tail back, and heave it downfield.

Both guards and the outside tackle, pulling out of the line, are the men who perform the chief blocking chores.

Deception is the keynote of the double wing.

A glance at the Temple offense should be convincing proof.

Prescott Scores 4th Grid Victory

PRESCOTT, Ark.—The Prescott High School Curly Wolves scored their fourth victory of the season by defeating Glenwood, 49 to 6, here Tuesday night.

The winners scored on the first play of the game on a 30-yard pass. Prescott scored 21 points in the first quarter, 14 in the second and seven in each of the third and fourth quarters. Glenwood scored in the third quarter. Buck Halsey, Dick Williamson and Leo Smith, backs, and Robert Baker and D. C. White, linemen were outstanding for the winners.

CHICAGO—Dizzy Dean says the Pirates didn't deserve to be in first place anyway. "shakin' like a lot of leaves in the wind."

Dean obtained a deal of satisfaction out of winning that key game for the Cubs. He refused to speak when he bumped into a group of Buccaners' fans leaving Wrigley Field that eventful afternoon.

"Leave 'em where you knock 'em down is my motto," asserts Old Diz, who says that the Pirates couldn't take it. "not even when a kid like my brother, Paul, was tryin' to come back against them a couple of weeks ago."

"The remarks they made about him," he says, "were just what I needed. I'm pretty mad. Traynor says that Paul had so little stuff that he could hit him with his fist. Nice thing to crack about a kid trying to make good after being down and out. Well, Paul beat 'em anyway, and I licked 'em good and plenty. I gave everything I had to take that flag away from them."

Bill Lee, or what there is left of him after his heroic marathon stunt, and Clay Bryant should give the Yankees more trouble in the world series than the entire Pittsburgh staff figured to stir up, and they may now expect help from Dean that was unexpected.

Dean Is Faster Than He Looks
Charley Root declares that Dean was much faster in his great 2-1 victory over the Bucs than people could see from the stands.

"Diz throws with so easy a motion that it fools spectators as well as hitters," explains the veteran. "His first ball goes up just enough to make 'em pop up."

When the Pirates were seven and a half games in front, Freddie Lindstrom insisted that they wouldn't win the entire Pittsburgh staff figured to stir up, and they may now expect help from Dean that was unexpected.

As Bryant, who with Lee carried the bulk of the Cubs' pitching burden in their phenomenal drive, remarks they'll get more than time and a half for overtime.

Joe McCarthy suspects that he put a jinx on the Pirates and brought the Cubs he formerly managed good luck by looking over Wrigley Field during the Yankees' last stop in Chicago. McCarthy did the same thing in 1932 when the Biffes were making their last visit to Chicago during the regular season. The Cubs didn't have the pennant clinched at the time, but

Doc Prothro Signs as Philly Manager

Former Little Rock Pilot Gets Two-Year Contract in Big Show

CHICAGO —(AP)—Gerald Nugent, president of the Philadelphia Phillies, Tuesday night signed Dr. James Thompson (Doc) Prothro of Memphis to a two-year contract as manager of the club. Prothro succeeds Jimmy Wilson who resigned Saturday.

Prothro, who has held a managers job in the Southern Association for nine years and resigned recently as the Little Rock pilot, said he would return to Philadelphia with Nugent after the world series to confer on the club's 1939 prospects.

"The Phillies have some good pitchers," Prothro said, "but I want more power and want to add speed to the club."

The new Philly pilot managed Memphis in the Southern Association for five years, winning one pennant, then resigned four years ago to go to Little Rock where he won another flag.

Prothro said he was offered a major league post two years ago but turned it down "because I liked the South. Now I am going to give it a whirl and see if I can do any good."

Wilson, his predecessor, had managed the Phils since 1934, when he replaced Bert Shotton.

Prothro first appeared in the major leagues in 1920 when the Washington Senators gave him a trial as an infielder. His first full season in the majors was in 1925 with the Boston Red Sox. He played third base and batted .319 for the season.

Prothro stayed out of baseball in 1921 and 1922 and practiced dentistry. He came back with Memphis in 1923, was purchased by Washington that fall, but remained with Memphis through 1924. He was traded to Boston in 1925, went to Portland in 1926, and finally wound up with Memphis again.

Prothro's salary as the Philly manager was not disclosed.

Now they have come through again.

McCarthy insists on Ground Rule. "The Cubs have a great park now," explains McCarthy. "It's real pretty, too, with climbing vines growing on the wall below the bleacher seats. I asked the ground keeper if they had a ground rule covering a batted ball sticking in the vines out of the reach of an outfielder. He told me that he didn't know of one. Maybe the National League has overlooked a rule to cover such a happening."

Attention to details is one of the many things that took him to the top of the managing profession.

Clarence Rowland of the Cubs obviously wanted to be alone while scouting the New York club against the Senators at Yankee Stadium. But Charley McManus, superintendent of the stadium, spotted Pantis in the grandstand and sent Paul Krichell and Gene McCarney, Yankee scouts, to scout him.

Family Is Getting Lots of Breaks
RYE, Colo.—(AP)—When Mrs. Gertrude McDaniel says "This Family gets all the breaks," she isn't trying to be humorous; merely stating facts.

There have been ten breaks, all of bones, in the family in recent months. Mrs. McDaniel is recovering from a broken left arm; Jimmy, 11, also broke his wrist; Gladys, 15, and Leo, 17, broke some bones in an automobile accident; David, 2, broke a collar bone; Marjorie, 13, twice broke her left elbow; Leo broke a shoulder in a mountain climbing accident and Chester, the father, twice has fractured ribs.

Hitting the dirt in a cloud of dust, Rip Collins, Cub first baseman, slides across the plate safely in the fifth inning to score one of the 10 runs which beat the Pirates at Wrigley Field. Dickson killed Cooley. Anderson replied that it was.

"This gun left that man lifeless out there," shouted Tucker. "Didn't this gun also leave another man lifeless in a cornfield in Indiana?"

Anderson made no reply and the question was hurled at him again.

The condemned man hesitated and then replied: "I never have been convicted for any crime in Indiana."

Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Ridge-way offered an objection and prevented further questioning of Anderson as to murders that he is alleged to have committed in Indiana and Michigan.

Tucker was referring to the murder of John Cella, taxi driver of Gary, Ind. Officers have said that Anderson confessed that he killed Cella and left his body in a cornfield in order to get possession of the victim's taxicab.

Montgomery Loses Fight to Mullins

Bauxite Battler Unable to Land Famed Right-handed Punch

MEMPHIS, Tenn. —(AP)—Harry (Moon) Mullins of D'Lo, Miss., won the Southern heavyweight championship here Tuesday night by punching out Lloyd Montgomery of Bauxite, Ark. The 23-year-old Mississippi battler entered the ring at 188 pounds, Montgomery weighed 182.

Mullins, flashing a lightning-like left that found its mark on Montgomery's face, took an early lead. He forced the fight, trading blows evenly on the few occasions when Montgomery found opportunity to counter with his left.

Not until the fourth round did Montgomery get going. After taking another jab at the outset, he registered three times with his left, starting the blood to flow from Mullins' nose.

An instant later Mullins' left eye sprouted and the next trading of blows did the same for Montgomery's eye. Both wounds were widened in the later rounds.

Montgomery's famed right was cocked continually, but it never landed. Several times it bounced off Mullins' head and shoulders after causing minor damage. Both boys tried hard for a knockout in the last two rounds.

In the semifinal, Mickey Breen of Louisville, light-heavyweight, defeated Chet Gideon of Wichita, Kan., in 10 rounds.

"Isolation—that is the inevitable price of France's capitulation to the aggressor and that isolation was precisely Hitler's aim."

Britain Cautious
WASHINGTON—(AP)—Great Britain, in the view of some experts here, will play a careful game in her relations with Russia in the near future. She must watch her step lest she drive the Soviet into the arms of Germany.

Though there apparently is no love lost between Hitler and Stalin, the 1922 treaty of Rapallo, which made Germany and Soviet Russia allies for a time, is still fresh in observers' minds, as is also the contention is caused in Europe.

Russia reacted bitterly to her exclusion from the recent four-power conference at Munich—and to the whole Chamberlain policy toward Germany.

Some British, it is thought here, would like to see Germany serve as a bulwark against Russia and Russia as a bulwark against Germany. Perhaps, it is said, there is a lingering hope in some British minds that Germany and Russia may so balance each other in Eastern Europe that neither one would prove a danger in Western Europe and in other parts of the world.

'Crises' Are Stepping Stones on Hitler's Path to Power

By PAUL ROSS

NEA Service Staff Correspondent
Adolf Hitler today stands on a height of power achieved by few—if any—other men before him. His slightest action brings international repercussions. His merest utterance is studied down to the last syllable by apprehensive statesmen. The heads of powerful nations fly to meet him at his suggestion.

Though the immediate danger of war seems to be past, a word from Adolf Hitler could plunge the world into the most frightful strife in its history.

How did the one-time house-painter maneuver himself into this position?

Leader of a malcontent group since 1920; co-leader of the abortive and comical but prophetic 1923 "beer hall" putsch in Munich; advocate of a program which promised all things to all men such as abolition of capitalism to the workers and retention of capitalism to the capitalists; hypnotic orator; stooge for some of Germany's most powerful bankers and industrialists—Adolf Hitler was finally called by President Von Hindenburg to take power on January 30, 1933. Within 60 days, he transformed his legal Chancellorship into a dictatorship.

The day after he became Chancellor, Hitler dissolved the Reichstag and set March 5 as the date for a new election. At the strategic moment—February 27—the Reichstag building suddenly burned down. Although a half-witted Dutch Communist was later headed for this crime, there is a wide-held suspicion that Nazis set the blaze going. In any event, it provided Hitler with the excuse he needed. The following day he obtained from Von Hindenburg a decree abolishing freedom of speech, press and assembly, privacy of mail and telegraph. Death became the penalty for various political offenses. The day after, the republican flag was abolished by decree.

The four-power conference of Great Britain, France, Italy and Germany having granted him virtually all he demanded of Czechoslovakia, Adolf Hitler saunters from the conference hall, the Fuehrerhaus in Munich, Germany, very much the victor—without having fired a shot. Directly behind him, in the radiophoto above, marches Heinrich Himmler, chief of the German secret police.

Next, Hitler's storm troopers arrested his political opponents by the thousands and either executed them or put them in concentration camps. Those who could, escaped.

With the opposition leaderless, the Nazi party swept the elections and brought in a rubber-stamp Reichstag. Eighteen days later this Reichstag gave Hitler dictatorial power and voted itself and the democratic form of government out of existence. Persecution of the Jews had been organized on a national basis in the meantime. Later the Socialist and Communist parties were banned.

Among the first moves of Hitler in the international field was withdrawal of Germany from the League of Nations and the 1933 disarmament conference, both on October 14. Four days later Hitler demanded the right to arm the Third Reich and to build forts like France's.

On June 14, 1934, Hitler laid the foundations for the "Rome-Berlin axis" by conferring with Benito Mussolini in Rome. That same day, he announced a moratorium on German payments of war debts. Two weeks later, on the 30th, armed squads of faithful Nazi slew scores of other Nazi who were planning to revolt against Hitler.

Also shot were a couple of generals in the German Army which had been resisting Hitler secretly.

On August 2, Paul Von Hindenburg died and the last obstacle for Hitler was thus removed. He made himself President, as well as Chancellor. Hitler's first international victory came on January 13, 1935, when the Saar region, long separated from Germany by the Versailles Treaty, voted heavily to return to the Reich under a plebiscite authorized by the Treaty. Having used the Treaty to his advantage, Hitler then denounced it on March 16 and told the world that Germany was introducing universal military conscription. France and England did nothing.

Almost a year later, on March 7, 1938, Hitler violated the Locarno Treaty by marching his new army into the demilitarized Rhineland. Again, France and England did nothing. In the meantime, on June 18, 1935, England signed an agreement with Germany permitting the latter to build a navy.

On January 13, 1937, Hermann Wilhelm Goering made a trip to Rome to consult with Mussolini. The "Rome-Berlin axis" was publicly announced. There were subsequent meetings between Hitler and Mussolini.

In the early weeks of 1938, Austria was in such a state of turmoil that it was apparent things were coming to a head. On the 12th of February, Hitler summoned Chancellor Kurt von Schuschnigg to a meeting in Berchtesgaden, Germany, and demanded an increased share in the Austria government for Austrian Nazis. Squeezed to the wall by internal disorder and outside pressure, Schuschnigg gave Hitler an Austrian cabinet with five pro-Nazis in it.

But the Nazi disorders increased and one of Hitler's followers in the Austrian cabinet "invited" Der Fuehrer to give the country "protection." On March 11, Hitler scored his greatest triumph by marching his army into Austria and completing the Anschluss. Once more, France and Britain failed to act.

Austria had hardly been digested when Nazi agitation was renewed for "autonomy" for the Sudeten-German areas of Czechoslovakia. And again Europe teetered on the edge of war—and Hitler's will.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By Rodney Dutcher

WASHINGTON—Behind all maneuvers of the U. S. government in relation to war-clouded Europe has been the strong belief, firmly held by the man in the White House as well as other officials, that Hitler is aiming toward a German war of revenge against France.

This conviction nurtures a certainty that concessions to Herr Hitler will only strengthen Germany's economic power, her war machine and her prestige toward the day when France will be attacked and Britain will come to her defense.

Hence the curiously complicated administration policy of trying to make it appear that the U. S. would not have stood by in complete neutrality if England and France had insisted on a prompt showdown with Germany and Czechoslovakia.

Mr. Roosevelt and Secretary Hull went on the theory that the only thing which might dissuade Hitler from further aggression would be a threat of British-French-Russian military opposition plus vague threats of something or other which might be done by the U. S.

They felt Hitler had been encouraged by assurances this country would cause him no trouble. But their efforts to counteract that impression in Berlin obviously were bound to be useless unless Britain herself made the strongest and most convincing threats.

A sort of corollary American policy developed, based on hope that strong declarations by Roosevelt and Hull, aimed at Hitler, might "put spine" in the British and French. But public sentiment for peace and isolation prevented Roosevelt and Hull from saying anything strong enough to be effective.

The Gas Company shall also (b) pay to the City within fifteen (15) days after the passage of this Ordinance the sum of Six Hundred Dollars ($600.00) and a like sum on the first day of July, 1939, and Six Hundred Dollars ($600.00) on the first day of each July thereafter so long as this Ordinance remains in force, said payments to be in lieu of all other taxes, licenses, charges, fees or impositions (other than the usual and special ad valorem taxes) which might be legally imposed by the City under the authority conferred by law.

Hitler Doesn't Seem Easily Answered The question why the government couldn't mind its own business, White House and State Department counselors say its very much the business of the U. S. to work for world peace, to obstruct efforts of dictators to wipe out democracies, and to use every diplomatic effort to avert a day when the U. S. might stand alone in a world of aggressive war machines with guns pointed at the western hemisphere.

The hope Hitler could be scared or bluffed at the time was Washington's best bet for peace. American diplomats don't share the belief of some high British officials that Nazi Germany can be depended on to spend their strength against Soviet Russia instead of seeking complete European domination by an attack on France.

Although hardly in a position to egg England on to a stronger stand, officials kept their fingers crossed as inspired cablegrams reported England had threatened military co-operation with France in case of invasion of Czechoslovakia. They knew better.

When Germany first began maneuvers equivalent to mobilization, both Roosevelt and Hull made speeches they hoped would directly affect Hitler's plans. The effect hasn't been noticeable. But it's contended at the State Department that the government did all it could.

Peace Through Trade Pacts? Stronger gestures, in keeping with the present neutrality laws which the administration wants repealed, might have been made. The State Department might have invoked the 1921 pence treaty which forbade shipments of munitions to Germany.

But Hull recently denied publicly that his department was violating the law in issuing licenses for munitions exports to Germany and apparently no such step was contemplated. Faced with proof that strong words and solemn admonitions have no dissuading effect on a man like Hitler, the State Department falls back on its only concrete program designed to promote world peace.

This is the program of international trade agreements so dear to Secretary Hull.

Its effectiveness as a peace program may be doubtful. Hull and his associates, nevertheless, insist it's the only constructive effort with potentialities for peace now operating in this worried world.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and down" free, healthy, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 25 cents. Stubbornly refuse anything else.
